WX'S WOMEN OF THE YEAR GALA

Nov. 15, The Pierre

WX New York Women Executives in Real Estate kicked off its 2018 Women of the Year gala at the Pierre Hotel last month by honoring Cheryl Boyer, the COO of Fulcrum Hospitality, the $6 billion real estate investment firm focused on hotels and gaming. "Cheryl is the quintessential role model for women in our industry," said WX President Beth Zafonte, who is also the director of economic development services at Akerman. "She leads in the best possible way; by example." This year's gala was sold out and raised $608,000 for the 30-year-old WX (a new record), an organization for executive-level women in commercial real estate. "WX's mission is more relevant than ever," said Boyer in her remarks at the gala. "True, there are more women in leadership roles today than 30 years ago...but we can all agree there is so much more we can do. It's not okay to say I don't care. We must all care about each other and about the young professionals who are the future. There is more to give."—The Editors
